(Marks : 2 x 5 = 10)

Jyoti, a gardener's son, was once invited to attend the marriage ceremony of a Brahmin friend. As he loved his friend dearly, he attended the function. The bridegroom was being led in a procession to the bride's house. The procession consisted of men, women and children mostly Brahmins. Jyoti was also walking along with the procession.

One orthodox Brahmin recognized him and was annoyed at the sight of a low caste boy walking with the Brahmins in marriage procession. Unable to contain himself, he shouted, "How dare you walking along with us? You are not our equal. Get behind! Otherwise, go away." Jyoti felt insulted. He left the procession and returned home.

He narrated the whole incident to his father with anger in his eyes. However, his father advised him to observe old customs. That night Jyoti could not sleep. He was assailed by the insult he had suffered as a result of years of discrimination inflicted on lower castes. He felt compelled to find a way to end caste discrimination. As the lower caste people were not educated, they had accepted this mental slavery for ages. Jyoti, therefore, resolved to revolt against this mental slavery and educate the lower caste people. He became the first Indian to start a school for the untouchables as well as a girls' school in Maharashtra. We recognize him today as Mahatma Phule.

(a) According to the passage, what has made low caste people accept mental slavery?

(b) What kind of a man was Jyoti's father?

(c) What did Jyoti do after he was insulted?

(d) Why was the Brahmin annoyed with Jyoti?
